

How to apply a Zovirax® invisisiSeal™ patch

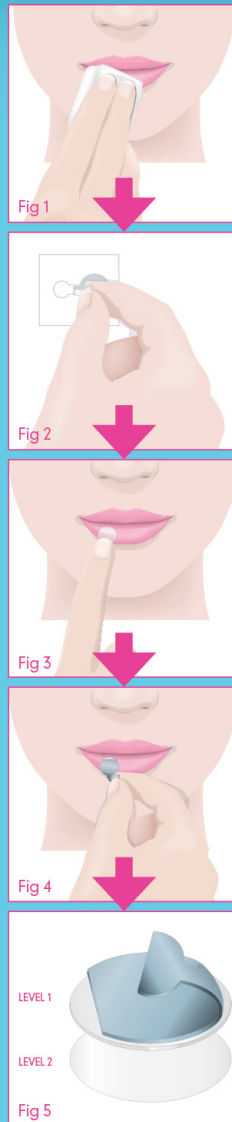

Preparation

1. Clean and dry area on which the patch is to be applied (Fig 1)
2. Warm hands as heat will help release the patch from its backing
3. Remove applicator from sachet

Application

1. Holding the smaller half circle end of the applicator, peel the applicator from clear plastic backing (Fig 2)
2. Place larger round end of applicator over cold sore
3. Press firmly with a warmed finger on the central thin section of the applicator for at least 15 seconds – the heat of your lip and finger will help release the patch from the applicator (Fig 3)
4. Holding the smaller half circle end of the applicator gently pull away the applicator at a slight angle (Fig 4)
5. The invisisiSeal patch should separate from the thicker clear plastic circle of the applicator leaving just an ultra thin flexible shield over your cold sore

Level 1 is a paper backing joined to a clear plastic segment that lifts away
Level 2 is a thin flexible film patch that stays on the skin (Fig 5)

Trouble Shooting

If you have trouble applying the invisisiSeal patch check the following:

1. Is the area you're applying the patch to clean and dry?
2. Don't attempt to apply over cream (until dry) or lipstick – you can apply lipstick over the patch once it is on
3. Are you holding the patch by the smaller half circle end?
4. Are your fingers warm enough? Heat is the key to releasing the patch from the applicator
5. Are you mistaking the thicker clear plastic of the applicator for the patch? This sometimes lifts slightly from the blue section of the applicator but don't worry – as long as the thin central part of the applicator has been heated by your finger – the patch will remain behind when you remove the applicator
6. Are you trying to peel the patch off the applicator before applying? The only way to separate the patch from the applicator is to first place the applicator on the cold sore area, heat the thin central section with your finger and then gently pull away the applicator at a slight angle
